

China leading superpower in the world in Y2030 and USA 2nd.

We are pleased to present you some of the conclusions and hypotheses by the new global research on the perceptions of international superpowers and their policies, conducted by Brain and Gallup International Association at the end of 2020

A total of 42,598 persons in 45 countries were interviewed globally (+/-1,000 interviews per country) either face to face, via telephone or online

RESULTS

In 10 years, China and the United States will remain the leading powers. Worldwide, China is 3 points above US

Which of these powers do you think will be a superpower in the world in 2030?

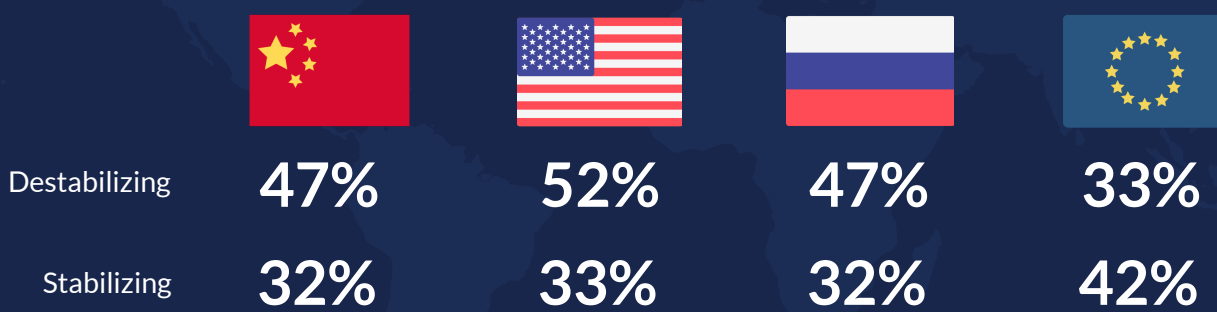

The perception of Mexicans is complicated. China is perceived as twice as powerful for the next decade compared to the United States.

US and China - which are the biggest superpowers now and are expected to continue to be such in the next decade are also viewed as a major destabilizing factor worldwide

What do you think about the international policies of the following four superpowers – are their policies stabilizing or destabilizing the world?

Worldwide opinion

Mexicans opinion

The USA are expected to continue to be a superpower according to the majority of the respondents around the world, but at the same time the States are perceived as the most destabilizing force. More than a half of the respondents around the world think so

Most of the people worldwide think that Russia's policies are rather destabilizing too.

The EU is perceived as the most stabilizing factor, but is expected not to be anymore at the table of the superpowers

For Mexicans, United States becomes a strongly destabilizing nation in the future due to its policies.
